What’s in it for you?

Aside from the benefits listed in the chart on the reverse of this page, you will have a direct affect on the workforce of the future.

Will you be in her corner with us?

Our nationally-developed programs are the result of studies conducted by the Girls Incorporated National Resource Center – the largest and most comprehensive research center on girls in the country.

These informal education programs encourage girls to take risks and master physical, intellectual and emotional challenges.

These programs address math and science education, to health and sexuality, drug abuse prevention, media literacy, economic literacy, violence prevention, communication and conflict resolution, and sports participation.

As a result, many of our girls will hit the ground running, benefitting future employers.
